The optimally cut 3-room flat has an open living area with modern kitchen, 2 bedrooms, a spacious bathroom and a HW room. The east-facing terrace is accessible from the living area and leads into the garden with special use.

A modern and stylish new building in the architectural Bauhaus style. It is being built in an area characterized by villas, not far from the Zehlendorf S-Bahn station. The nine apartments in total are spread over four floors and have living areas of approximately 78-194m². The property consists of three apartments on both the ground and first floor, two residential units on the second floor, and a spacious penthouse on the top floor. The 3 to 5-room apartments benefit from well-thought-out floor plans and only floor-to-ceiling windows for optimal lighting conditions in the rooms. The building fulfills all wishes for modern living, with balconies facing almost every direction. There are gardens of approximately 52-290m² that are available to residents on the ground floor for private use.

In the basement, there are 9 vehicle parking spaces and 18 secure storage units for bicycles which can be used as apartment cellar rooms. In addition, charging stations for electric vehicles (for both cars and bikes) will be provided. For ease of access, there is an elevator that runs from the underground parking garage up to the penthouse.

The project will meet the KFW 55 standard: through the ecological construction we not only reduce the CO² emissions but also our CO² footprint. Green roofs and solar panels will be implemented in the project as future-oriented initiatives, as well as to provide a sustainable heat supply.
